

The year 2015 was a busy one for the telecom vendor community. The industry witnessed aggressive 3G roll-outs while long term evolution (LTE) deployments gained traction. Further, national programmes like Digital India and Make in India are expected to accelerate the industry's growth momentum. Going forward, LTE is likely to become mainstream in India, promising greater business prospects for the equipment industry. Leading vendors share their views on the industry's performance in the past one year, the expectations from the government, the key challenges, and the way forward...
