

Intex Technologies has appointed Arun Kumar as advisor. Kumar has more than 35 years of experience in human resource (HR). In this role, he would be responsible for the gradual transformation of the company's policies to enhance employee engagement in delivering business goals. Kumar would be working at the macro-level to enhance the leadership capacity and talent management of the company.

Prior to this, Kumar has worked with organisations including K.K. Modi Group, Escorts JCB Limited and Hindustan Lever Limited where he brought people agenda to the forefront of business decision making processes. He has completed an Advance Management Program (AMP 175) from Harvard Business School, US and is a post graduate from Xavier Institute of Social Service in Ranchi.

Commenting on the appointment, Narendra Bansal, chairman and managing director, Intex Technologies, said "Continuing to attract and retain the right people is essential as we consolidate our core skills and strengths across departments. Arun Kumar's wealth of expertise in HR domain will be vital for Intex's overall growth and perception by driving continuous improvement in HR policies and systems."

Meanwhile, on joining Intex Technologies, Arun Kumar said "I am honoured to take the challenging role at Intex Technologies. Being a professionally-run organisation, it is our role to identify challenges and overcome them. It will be a long road and a continuous process to build an environment where issues are dealt humanely and with professional ethics. I look forward to being involved and contributing towards the company's growth vision by establishing and strengthening best practices related to all aspects of HR."
