

BlackBerry's India managing director Narendra Nayak has quit the company after serving the company for over two years.

Nayak has over 30 years of experience in the information technology and telecom industry. In the past, Nayak has worked as the country sales manager for Motorola from 1994 to 1998, and has also held senior roles with CSC India and IBM India.

Post his resignation, the responsibility of overseeing the company's India operations has been bestowed upon Shantanu Srivastava, Vice President of the Asia Pacific and Japan.
